1 In its August 2011 Order dismissing plaintiffs’ Consolidated Class Action Complaint, the 2 Court addressed plaintiffs’ federal and state-law claims together when it concluded that plaintiffs’ 3 failure to plead an antitrust violation necessitated dismissal of the entire complaint. And in its 4 recent August 20, 2012 Order addressing the Second Amended Consolidated Class Action 5 Complaint, the Court dismissed plaintiffs’ Sherman Act claim for failure to plead an antitrust 6 conspiracy and again recognized that “without a conspiracy, there is no federal claim, and claims 7 premised on violations of federal law must also fail.”

8 Pursuant to Federal Rule 59(e), defendants Fender Musical Instruments Corporation, 9 Gibson Guitar Corp., Guitar Center, Inc., Hoshino (U.S.A.), Inc., Kaman Music Corp., Yamaha 10 Corporation of America, and National Association of Music Merchants, Inc. (collectively 11 “Defendants”) respectfully request that the Court amend the August 21, 2012 judgment to reflect 12 the conclusion that the Court has already reached and that is inevitable: plaintiffs’ state-law claims 13 fail because they are premised upon the dismissed federal claim. Under these circumstances, a 14 Rule 54(b) judgment dismissing only the federal claims will create significant finality and 15 jurisdictional questions on appeal that could lead the Ninth Circuit to reverse and remand. Instead, 16 defendants request that the Court amend the judgment to dismiss any remaining state-law claims.
17 Such amendment would make it unnecessary for the Ninth Circuit to confront whether state and 18 federal claims explicitly premised on the same conspiracy are separate “claims” for purposes of 19 Rule 54(b) or whether the clear overlap in the legal and factual issues means that partial judgment 20 does not serve the Rule’s purposes. Also as plaintiffs stated in their second amended consolidated 21 complaint, the Court has original jurisdiction over the state-law claims under the Class Action 22 Fairness Act. The Court may not remand or decline jurisdiction over the state-law claims under 23 that Act and will have to rule upon those claims eventually, which it effectively already has done 24 by dismissing the federal claim upon which they are based. Accordingly, entering an amended 25 order that dismisses all of the claims before the Court will allow this litigation to proceed toward a 26 just, efficient and final resolution, will conserve the resources of the parties and the Court, and will 27 eliminate the potential for jurisdictional issues before the Court of Appeals.

28

1 BACKGROUND

2 Plaintiffs assert that defendants engaged in a conspiracy to raise, fix, maintain, or stabilize 3 prices of guitars and guitar amplifiers. This Court dismissed plaintiffs' Consolidated Class Action 4 Complaint in its entirety, including the dependent state-law claims, because plaintiffs failed to 5 plead sufficient allegations of conspiracy. (Dkt. 133.) Plaintiffs subsequently amended their 6 complaint twice, resulting in the operative Second Amended Consolidated Class Action 7 Complaint (the "SACCAC"). (Dkt. 178.)

8 The SACCAC contains four claims: (1) violation of the Sherman Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1; (2) 9 violation of the California Cartwright Act, Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 16700 et seq.; (3) violation 10 of California's Unfair Competition Law, Cal. Bus. Code §§ 17200 et seq. ("UCL"); and (4) 11 violation of the Massachusetts Consumer Protection Act, Massachusetts General Law 93A §§ 2 et 12 seq. ("MCPA"). (See SACCAC ¶¶ 163-92.) Plaintiffs candidly acknowledged in their Opposition 13 to Defendants' Motion to Dismiss the SACCAC that each of those claims is based upon an alleged 14 conspiracy in violation of the Sherman Act. (See Dkt. 183 at 25 ("Plaintiffs' claims under 15 California and Massachusetts law, . . . arise from the same allegations and assert the same 16 price-fixing conspiracy [as] Plaintiffs' Sherman Act claim . . .").

17 On August 20, 2012, the Court dismissed the Sherman Act claim and certified the 18 dismissal of only that claim as a final judgment under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 54(b). (Dkt.
19 198.) The following day, the Clerk of the Court entered final judgment as to plaintiffs' Sherman 20 Act claims only under Rule 54(b). (Dkt. 199.) Defendants now move to alter or amend that partial 21 final judgment.

22 ARGUMENT

23 Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 59(e),¹ Defendants respectfully request that

24
25 ¹ Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 59(e) grants district courts "broad discretion" to reconsider and 26 amend a previous order. See 12 James Wm. Moore et al., Moore's Federal Practice § 59.30[4] (3d 27 ed. 2000); see also Turner v. Burlington Northern Santa Fe R.R., 338 F.3d 1058, 1063 (9th Cir.
28 2003) ("A district court has considerable discretion when considering a motion to amend a judgment under Rule 59(e).").

Plaintiffs filed a Notice of Appeal on September 10, 2012, ten days before the September 20 deadline. This Court nevertheless retains jurisdiction to decide this Rule 59(e) motion. See, e.g., Tripati v. Henman, 845 F.2d 205, 205-06 (9th Cir. 1988) (per curiam) ("The dispositive issue in

1 the Court amend its Rule 54(b) partial judgment because, as this Court previously recognized, 2 plaintiffs' remaining state-law claims for relief all rest on the dismissed Sherman Act conspiracy 3 claim.

4 I. A PARTIAL JUDGMENT UNDER RULE 54(B) WILL CREATE
 5 SIGNIFICANT AND UNNECESSARY JURISDICTIONAL ISSUES
 6 BEFORE THE COURT OF APPEALS

7 Amendment of the judgment to reflect dismissal of the state-law claims is appropriate, not 8 only because it follows a fortiori from the Court's dismissal of the federal claim, but also because 9 it would obviate any questions on appeal about the Court's Rule 54(b) certification. Because the 10 state-law claims in these cases depend on the same theory and factual allegations of conspiracy as 11 the federal claim that the Court has already dismissed, the Court of Appeals may conclude that 12 they are not separate "claims" within the meaning of Rule 54(b) or that separate appellate 13 consideration does not serve the purposes of the Rule. Those questions would needlessly 14 complicate the appeal and may delay the final resolution of these cases.

14 A. The Court Recognized That State-Law Claims Premised Upon the 15 Alleged Sherman Act Violation Necessarily Fail

16 The Court's finding that plaintiffs have not adequately alleged a conspiracy under the 17 Sherman Act means that plaintiffs' other claims must fail. (See August 20, 2012 Order (Dkt. 198) 18 at 9:9-10.) This Court recognized that "without a conspiracy, there is no federal claim, and claims 19 premised on violations of federal law must also fail." (Id.) Plaintiffs have acknowledged that their 20 "claims under California and Massachusetts law, . . . arise from the same allegations and assert the 21 same price-fixing conspiracy [as] Plaintiffs' Sherman Act claim." (Dkt. 183 at 25.)

23 this appeal is whether a district court retains subject matter jurisdiction to consider a timely Fed. R.
 24 Civ. P. 59(e) motion to alter or amend a judgment when the motion is filed subsequent to a notice 25 of appeal. We reverse the district court's holding that it lacked jurisdiction over the Rule 59(e) 26 motion."); see also San Luis & Delta-Mendota Water Auth. v. Salazar, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27 47661, at *12-13 (E.D. Cal. May 4, 2011) ("The district court has subject matter jurisdiction to 28 consider a timely motion under Rule 59(e) even where such motion is filed subsequent to a notice of appeal. The filing of a Rule 59(e) motion suspends the operation of a notice of appeal until it is resolved, at which point the notice of appeal becomes effective." (internal citation omitted)); Williams v. Ahlin, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 43176, at * 2-3 (E.D. Cal. Apr. 21, 2011) ("Here, the motion was filed after Petitioner filed his notice of appeal. However, it is established that a district court retains subject matter jurisdiction to rule on a tolling motion even though a notice of appeal has been previously filed." (internal citation omitted)).

1 This Court has already recognized that the Cartwright Act claim is derivative of the 2 Sherman Act claim. It is based on the same alleged factual conspiracy and the same pleading 3 standards apply. The Court’s conclusion that plaintiffs failed to adequately plead “plus factors” to 4 support an inference of conspiracy under the Sherman Act thus requires dismissal of the 5 Cartwright Act claim as well. See Eddins v. Redstone, 134 Cal. App. 4th 290, 303-08 (Cal. Ct.
6 App. 2005). Courts consistently have recognized that Cartwright Act claims stand or fall with 7 parallel claims under the Sherman Act. See, e.g., Rick-Mik Enters. v. Equilon Enters., LLC, 532
8 F.3d 963, 976 n.5 (9th Cir. 2008) (“The state law antitrust claims are derivative of the federal law 9 claims. Because the federal claims fail, the state law claims fail.”); Cnty. of Tuolumne v. Sonora 10 Cnty. Hosp., 236 F.3d 1148, 1160 (9th Cir. 2001) (“The analysis under California’s antitrust law 11 mirrors the analysis under federal law because the Cartwright Act . . . was modeled after the 12 Sherman Act.”); Universal Grading Serv. v. eBay, Inc., 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2325, at *29 (N.D.
13 Cal. 2012) (“Plaintiffs’ allegations under the Cartwright Act . . . are also derivative of plaintiffs’ 14 Sherman Act claims. . . . [and] it is well established that [i]nterpretation of federal antitrust law is .
15 . . . applicable to the Cartwright Act.” (internal quotation marks and citation omitted)).

16 Plaintiffs’ UCL and MCPA claims are also based on the failed antitrust conspiracy claim, 17 and must be dismissed. See, e.g., Chavez v. Whirlpool Corp., 93 Cal. App. 4th 363, 374-75 (Cal.
18 Ct. App. 2001) (rejecting a UCL claim on the same grounds as it rejected plaintiffs’ Cartwright Act 19 claim because “a separate inquiry into essentially the same question under the unfair competition 20 law would only invite conflict and uncertainty and could lead to the enjoining of procompetitive 21 conduct”); Suzuki of W. Mass, Inc. v. Outdoor Sports Expo, Inc., 126 F. Supp. 2d 40, 50 (D. Mass.
22 2001) (dismissing plaintiff’s MCPA claims along with the “antitrust hosts” of those claims 23 because plaintiff could not establish conduct distinct from the failed antitrust violation). Indeed, 24 plaintiffs cite to Chavez and Suzuki to assert that their state law claims arise from the same 25 allegations and the same alleged price-fixing conspiracy as the Sherman Act claim. (See Plfs.’ 26 Opposition to Motion to Dismiss (Dkt. 183) at 25: 4-6, n.5.) Because plaintiffs premised their 27 UCL and MCPA claims upon the alleged Sherman Act conspiracy, their failure to plead the 28 necessary conspiratorial conduct to support the Sherman Act claim means their UCL and MCPA

1 claims must fail too.²

2 The Court effectively recognized that all of the claims stand or fall together when it ruled 3 on Defendants’ initial motions to dismiss—it dismissed the entire Consolidated Class Action 4 Complaint without distinguishing among the claims. (See August 22, 2011 Order (Dkt. 133) at 5 12:14.) That conclusion was correct, and plaintiffs did not appeal it. Plaintiffs admit that the 6 “claims under California and Massachusetts law, while distinct from the Sherman Act claim, arise 7 from the same allegations and assert the same price-fixing conspiracy.” (See Plfs.’ Opposition to 8 Motion to Dismiss (Dkt. 183) at 25:4-6, n.5.) Plaintiffs conceded that the plausibility of their 9 state-law claims depends entirely on the plausibility of their Sherman Act claim. (See id.) And in 10 its August 20, 2012 Order this Court again recognized that “without a conspiracy, there is no 11 federal claim, and claims premised on violations of federal law must also fail.” (See August 20, 12 2012 Order, Dkt. 198 at 9:9-10.) The Court noted also that plaintiffs agreed at oral argument that 13 they were proceeding only on the conspiracy theory. (Id. at 9:10-11.) Accordingly, it appears to 14 be both clear and undisputed that the Court’s reasoning in the August 20, 2012 Order requires 15 dismissal of the pending cases in their entirety.

16 B. Causes Of Action Based On Closely Related Facts are Not Separate 17 “Claims” for Purposes of Rule 54(b)

18 Rule 54(b) allows a court to enter a final judgment “as to one or more, but fewer than all, 19 claims” when the “action presents more than one claim for relief” and “the court expressly 20 determines that there is no just reason for delay.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

21 The Rule applies only when there are multiple, separate claims. “The word ‘claim’ in Rule 22 54(b) refers to a set of facts giving rise to legal rights in the claimant, not to legal theories of 23 recovery based upon those facts.” CMAX, Inc. v. Drewry Photocolor Corp., 295 F.2d 695 (9th Cir.

26 ² Plaintiffs also failed to cite any case law that specifically supports the UCL or MCPA claims.
 27 (See Plfs.’ Opposition to Motion to Dismiss (Dkt. 183) at 25:4-6, n.15.) This lack of distinct 28 analysis signifies that the alleged conduct is unlawful only to the extent it violates the Sherman Act and Cartwright Act. See Biljac Assocs. v. First Interstate Bank of Oregon, N.A., 218 Cal. App. 3d 1410,1422-23 (Cal. App. 1st Dist. 1990).

1 1961).³ Numerous courts have held that state-law claims based on the same facts as federal claims 2 are not separate claims under Rule 54(b). See Wood v. GCC Bend, LLC, 422 F.3d 873, 882 n.5 (9th 3 Cir. 2005) (“[S]tate law claims, to the extent they rely on the same set of facts common to a federal 4 claim, do not constitute a separate ‘claim’ for purposes of Rule 54(b).” (citation omitted)); 5 Hasbrouck v. Sheet Metal Workers Local 232, 586 F.2d 691, 694 (9th Cir. 1978) (“The state law 6 claims, to the extent they rely on that conduct, represent only alternate legal theories based on a set 7 of facts common to the federal claim. As such, they do not constitute separate ‘claims’ for which 8 certification under Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b) is appropriate.”).

9 Absent amendment of the judgment to reflect dismissal of all claims in the SCCAC, the 10 Ninth Circuit may conclude on appeal that the state-law claims in this case are not separate for 11 purposes of Rule 54(b) because each is based on the same facts—the same alleged conspiracy. See 12 SACCAC ¶¶ 171, 177, 186. If so, the Court of Appeals would conclude that the judgment is not a 13 proper final judgment. Because a final order is a prerequisite to appellate jurisdiction, see 28 14 U.S.C. § 1291, the Court of Appeals cannot avoid this issue and indeed will be obliged to consider 15 it sua sponte even if it is not raised by the parties.

16 C. A 54(b) Judgment Must Serve Sound Judicial Administration

17 Even if the Court of Appeals considers the claims to be separate, it may still conclude that 18 a Rule 54(b) judgment will not serve “sound judicial administration” because of the factual and 19 legal overlap among the claims. Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Mackey, 351 U.S. 427, 437 (1956). “Not 20 all final judgments on individual claims should be immediately appealable, even if they are in 21 some sense separable from the remaining unresolved claims.” Curtiss-Wright Corp. v. Gen. Elec.
 22 Co., 446 U.S. 1, 10 (1980). Rule 54(b) certification is generally “reserved for the unusual case in 23 which the costs and risks of multiplying the number of proceedings and of overcrowding the 24 appellate docket are outbalanced by pressing needs of the litigants for an early and separate 25 judgment as to some claims or parties.” Morrison-Knudsen Co. v. Archer, 655 F.2d 962, 964 (9th 26

27 ³ See also Wright & Miller, Federal Practice & Procedure § 2657 (2012) (“[W]hen a claimant 28 presents a number of legal theories, but will be permitted to recover only on one of them, the bases for recovery are mutually exclusive, or simply presented in the alternative, and plaintiff has only a single claim for relief for purposes of Rule 54(b).”).

1 Cir. 1981); see also Curtiss-Wright, 446 U.S. at 10 (“[S]ound judicial administration does not 2 require that Rule 54(b) requests be granted routinely.”).⁴

3 Courts often hold that “when the facts or legal issues underlying both the adjudicated and 4 the unadjudicated claims significantly overlap, a substantial risk of duplicative appellate review is 5 created” and Rule 54(b) is inappropriate. See 12 James Moore et al., Moore’s Federal Practice § 6 54.23 (3d ed. 2000); Morrison Knudsen, 655 F.2d at 965 (“a similarity of legal or factual issues 7 will weigh heavily against entry of judgment under [Rule 54(b)]”); Wood, 422 F.3d at 880 (finding 8 Rule 54(b) inappropriate because the plaintiffs’ “legal right to relief stems largely from the same 9 set of facts and would give rise to successive appeals that would turn largely on identical, and 10 interrelated, facts.”).

11 On appeal, the Ninth Circuit will review de novo “the district court’s evaluation of such 12 factors as the interrelationship of the claims so as to prevent piecemeal appeals in cases which 13 should be reviewed only as single units.” Wood, 422 F.3d at 878-79 (quoting Curtiss-Wright, 446 14 U.S. at 10). It may conclude that partial judgment on only the Sherman Act claim will result in 15 piecemeal appeals and will not promote judicial economy. If it concludes that partial judgment 16 under Rule 54(b) was improper, the Court of Appeals will remand the case for this Court to resolve 17 the remaining claims. Wood, 422 F.3d at 880. Such a remand would introduce unnecessary delay 18 and complication, when this Court has already made clear that it has concluded (correctly) that 19 Plaintiffs’ claims must be dismissed in their entirety.

20 II. REMAND IS UNAVAILABLE

21 In its most recent Order, the Court explained that “[i]f Plaintiffs do not intend to appeal, 22 they are requested to promptly notify the Court. If they so notify the Court, or if they do not file a

24 ⁴ A district court may enter judgment under Rule 54(b) “only if the court expressly determines that 25 there is no just reason for delay.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b). The court must make “specific findings 26 setting forth the reasons for its order,” and cannot simply make “only a “summary determination” 27 that there is no just reason for delay. See Lindsay v. Beneficial Reinsurance Co., 59 F.3d 942, 951 28 (9th Cir. 1995). Given the overlap in the state and federal claims, and that the state-law claims suffer the same deficiencies as the federal claim, it would be just for the Court to dismiss the state-law claims immediately and to enter a final judgment on all claims. Any delay caused by entry of the order so ruling would be insignificant and justifiable, as it would allow an immediate appeal of all issues. At the very least, defendants request that this Court articulate the reasons it concluded there is no just reason for delay.

1 notice of appeal within the time permitted, the Court will issue a further order respecting any cases 2 that include non-dismissed claims to be remanded.” (August 20, 2012 Order (Dkt. 198) at 9:18-21.) 3 Defendants respectfully believe that no remand procedure will be available in these cases, and that 4 this Court will need to resolve plaintiffs’ remaining claims at some point. The best course, 5 therefore, is to dismiss them now in one consolidated judgment.

6 All of the cases that include state-law claims were filed here in the Southern District of 7 California. The Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation (“JPML”) did not transfer those cases 8 originally. Instead, the cases were transferred to Judge Burns pursuant to the “low number” rule, 9 Southern District of California Local Rule 40.1. See, e.g., Giambusso v. National Association of 10 Music Merchants, Inc., et al., No. 09-cv-2002-LAB (JMA); Bohl v. National Association of Music 11 Merchants, Inc., et al., No. 09-cv-02332-LAB (JMA) (Order Transferring Case to Giambusso Per 12 Low Number Rule (Bohl Dkt. 10)). This Court’s dismissal of the federal claims therefore resolves 13 all of the cases originally transferred by the JPML and leaves nothing to remand.⁵

14 The Court also will not have the usual option to decline supplemental jurisdiction over 15 remaining state-law claims. The Court retains original jurisdiction over all claims because the 16 plaintiffs filed the class claims under the Class Action Fairness Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1332 (“CAFA”).
 17 Plaintiffs’ SACCAC specifically claims federal jurisdiction over state-law claims under CAFA.
 18 (See SACCAC ¶ 19.) CAFA provides federal district courts with “original jurisdiction of any civil 19 action in which the matter in controversy exceeds the sum or value of $ 5,000,000, exclusive of 20 interest and costs, and is a class action” 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(2).⁶ Because the Court has

21 _____
 22 ⁵ Even if state-law cases remain, this Court can only suggest remand to the JPML, which has the 23 sole power to remand the Multidistrict Litigation cases from this Court. See 28 U.S.C. § 1407(a); 24 see also 12 James Moore et al., Moore’s Federal Practice Civil § 112.07 (2012) (“The transferee court may suggest to the Panel that it issue a remand order for an action or group of actions, but it may not order a remand itself.”).

25 ⁶ “When the Federal Court has jurisdiction under CAFA, ‘post-filing developments do not defeat 26 jurisdiction if jurisdiction was properly invoked as of the time of filing.’” Dunn v. Endoscopy Ctr.
 27 of S. Nev., 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 84456, at *7 (D. Nev. June 19, 2012) (quoting United Steel, 28 Paper & Forestry, Rubber, Mfg., Energy, Allied Indus. & Serv. Workers Int’l Union, AFL-CIO, CLC v. Shell Oil Co., 602 F.3d 1087, 1091-92 (9th Cir. 2010)); Mansker v. Farmers Ins. Co., 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 40092, at *12-13 (W.D. Wash. Apr. 6, 2011) (“Based on the foregoing case authority, as well as CAFA’s legislative history, the court concludes its order on Defendants’ motion to dismiss [destroying minimal diversity] did not oust it of subject matter jurisdiction over this litigation.”). For example, even if the California citizens would comprise more than

1 original jurisdiction over the state-law claims, this is not a typical case in which jurisdiction over 2 the state-law claims is based on supplemental jurisdiction. Thus, the Court would have no 3 mechanism to decline jurisdiction even if the only remaining claims were based upon state law.
 4 See Knepper v. Rite Aid Corp., 675 F.3d 249, 261 (3d Cir. 2012) (“Here, independent jurisdiction
 5 exists over plaintiffs’ claims under CAFA, which provides no statutory basis for declining 6 [supplemental] jurisdiction”); Baas v. Dollar Tree Stores, Inc., 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 65979, 7 at *12-13 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 29, 2007) (rejecting defendant’s analogy to case law discussing 8 supplemental jurisdiction and noting that “the Court has original jurisdiction over Plaintiffs’ 9 state-law claims pursuant to CAFA [and] need not make a determination under 28 U.S.C. § 1367 10 as to whether it should decline to exercise supplemental jurisdiction over Plaintiffs’ state-law 11 claims”). The Court retains original jurisdiction and will have to rule upon those claims at some 12 point in time. Defendants respectfully suggest that time is now.

13 CONCLUSION

14 For the reasons stated above, Defendants request that the Court amend its August 20, 2012 15 Order, enter judgment on the remaining state-law claims, and dismiss the consolidated action 16 entirely.

 objective factual finding regarding the percentage of class members that were citizens of the forum state at the time of filing the class petition.” 1-21 Lisa Saveri, et al., CA Antitrust and Unfair
