I don't understand a lot about antitrust laws, but I don't understand how giving Comcast the power to take over one of the 3 major networks in the US can possibly be good for anyone but Comcast and those whose hands are in their pockets. This move definitely does not inspire trust that our government is looking out for the "little guy/gal". It is hard to believe that this event could occur without bribery and promises of special favors being a factor. It seems so obvious to the average American that this kind of monopoly can only limit our choices and empty our pockets. So many Americans fear Socialism because they think it would give the government more control over our lives. How much more control could that be, if our lawyers and judges allow such an obvious takeover of our what we are allowed to see on our televisions and computer screens and how much it will cost. This is way too much power for one company to have and frankly it scares me and eats away at my trust in my government. It makes me want to cry in despair when more profit and power are given to companies by a government that claims it is "for the people and by the people"
