

Hertz Releases Analysis of Anti-Trust Risk in Dollar Thrifty Acquisition

PARK RIDGE, NJ, Aug 31, 2010 (MARKETWIRE via COMTEX) --

Hertz Global Holdings, Inc. (NYSE: HTZ) ("Hertz") today provided Institutional Shareholder Services/RiskMetrics Group with a presentation outlining Hertz's analysis of the anti-trust risks posed by a merger of Hertz or Avis Budget Group, Inc. ("Avis Budget") with Dollar Thrifty Automotive Group, Inc. ("Dollar Thrifty"). The presentation illustrated key pricing data and the results of a pricing test (Gross Upper Pricing Pressure Index -- GUPPI) which the U.S. government uses to evaluate the anti-trust risk posed by merger transactions. Both the pricing data and the GUPPI results support Hertz's view that a merger of Avis Budget and Dollar Thrifty poses a far higher anti-trust risk than a merger of Hertz and Dollar Thrifty. The Hertz presentation also illustrates the significant valuation and financial impact on Avis of a divestiture by it of several hundred million dollars of revenues or of a large value brand; either of which may be required for Avis Budget to obtain anti-trust approval of a transaction with Dollar Thrifty. A copy of the presentation is available on the SEC's website, www.sec.gov, and on www.hertz.com.

Commenting on the presentation, Hertz Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Mark P. Frissora said, "The anti-trust considerations in a merger with Dollar Thrifty will be pivotal in this transaction. The major value brands in the car rental market at U.S. airports today -- Budget, Dollar, Thrifty, Alamo and Enterprise -- effectively control this key leisure rental segment. If Avis Budget merges with Dollar Thrifty, all of these brands and, thus, the value leisure segment, will be controlled by either Avis or Enterprise, and that's a bad deal for car rental customers. The data support the same conclusion, which is why a Hertz merger with Dollar Thrifty is better for consumers as well as our respective shareholders," he added.

Frissora went on to note that, "These facts will be apparent to those involved in the anti-trust analysis, and that's why it's important that investors understand the financial and valuation implications of revenue or a brand divestiture, which our merger agreement with Dollar Thrifty addresses in full. Given their current penetration of the value leisure segment and consequent anti-trust risk, Avis Budget offered a relatively small protection to Dollar Thrifty in the event significant divestitures are required by government regulators and, perhaps even more noteworthy, no reverse break-up fee. One can only conclude that Avis Budget knows it will have a difficult, if not impossible, task to finalize a merger with Dollar Thrifty without divesting a large brand or without a revenue carve-out perhaps exceeding well over $500 million. That's why Avis Budget wanted a free exit pass and Dollar Thrifty refused to accept their offer," Frissora concluded.
