

Questions To Ask When Finalizing the Paper

As you finalize the paper, ask the following questions:

1. Have I answer the question the paper posed?
2. Does the summary of the paper's conclusion in the introduction clear, concise, and complete?
3. Does the paper of a natural linear organization and a compelling narrative?
4. Do I have good introductory and concluding paragraphs for each section and subsection?
5. Is everything I say in the paper factually and legally correct?
6. Have I included everything in the paper that the reader should know?
7. Have I answered all of the questions the reader is likely to ask when reading the paper (and placed the answer in the text where the reader would expect to find it)?
8. Are my treatments of cases, guidelines, theories and the like both complete and clearly explained?
9. Have I used the active voice and limited the use of the passive voice except when absolutely necessary?
10. Are my word choices appropriate, accurately convey what I mean to say, and suitable for a formal legal writing?
11. Is the paper grammatically correct (including punctuation)?
12. Do authorities stand for the propositions for which they are cited, are the citations in proper Blue Book form, and have I used the appropriate introductory signals (see BB Rule 1.2)?
